

~~S-EC-TR-1~~

~~OTR VAULT COPY NO. 326~~

Document No. 1	OFFICE OF TRAINING
No Change in Classification	DIRECTIVE
<input type="checkbox"/> Declassified	March 1954
Class. Changed To: TS S
Auth.: HR 10-2
Date: 29 SEP 1978	COURSE: BIC(I)
By: 24

SUBJECT: Army Intelligence HOURS: 50 min.

METHOD OF PRESENTATION: Lecture & discussion INSTRUCTOR: 25X1A9a

OBJECTIVES OF INSTRUCTION: To inform the students of the intelligence function in the U. S. Army and the means by which it is performed.

SUMMARY OF PRESENTATION: The Army needs intelligence as a basis for planning and for the conduct of ground operations. Strategic intelligence is required by the high civilian officials of the Department of the Army, the Chief of Staff, the General Staff divisions, and by theater commanders; combat intelligence by unit commanders. U. S. Army organization provides for an intelligence officer on the commander's staff at all levels. As the highest intelligence officer, the A. C. of S., G-2 of the Department of the Army, has a number of responsibilities. Included among them is the responsibility of collecting and producing the intelligence needed by the Department of the Army and lower command echelons. Utilizing various collection services, the G-2 produces current, staff and basic intelligence required by the Army and for joint commitments.

SUBJECTS WITH WHICH COORDINATION IS REQUIRED: Naval Intelligence; Air Force Intelligence; Department of Defense Intelligence; Collection, Production and Dissemination of Intelligence.

REFERENCES: SIS Manual; Department of the Army Intelligence Plan (annual ed.).

REMARKS:

~~Conf.~~